Tired before the day begins

Do you fail to sleep well at night? Do you get up in the morning feeling played-out—often more so than when you went to bed? With no enthusiasm for the day's work—simply tired, tired all the time?

That's no way to live!

You should do something about it. The tired feeling that follows a day of hard work or strenuous play is normal. It is a natural fatigue which disappears after a night's rest. But, that tired feeling at the beginning of the day, when you constantly feel worn out and weary without any apparent cause, when your sleep is unrefreshing and you are irritable and easily depressed, is a danger signal warning you that there is something radically wrong.

As steam is to the locomotive or electric power to the radio, so is vital power to the intricate machinery of your body. Without vital power your organs could not possibly function. It is when your vital power is low that you feel abnormally tired, irritable

Very often auch a condition is the result of a shortage in the body of certain vital mineral substances which the little cells of your bodly clisuse utilize in producing the force called vital power which operates your bodly machinery.

As steam is to the locomotive or electric power to the radio, so is vital power to the power to the radio, so is vital power to the power to the radio, so is vital power to the power to the radio, so is vital power to the vital power.
